THE TRUTH SOMETIMES NOT FOUND OUT UNTIL TOO LATE.

SUCH is often the case in regard to persons taking medicine. They are induced by plausible reasoning, false representation and doctrines, to employ medicines that, so far from being adapted to their disease or sickness, absolutely increase the symptoms, destroy the constitution, rack the whole system, and bring on a gradual decline, terminating in death; previous to the fatal termination, however, (but unfortunately too late,) the truth is found out that the pills, mixtures, &c. they have been taking were composed of the most powerful and dangerous ingredients, prepared to by persons knowing nothing of disease or the nature of the medicines they recommended, depending altogether upon the "general doctrine of such impostors," that their medicines will "kill or cure." Be advised, then, if you find it necessary to take some medicine for purifying the blood and cleansing the bowels, to take nothing but Dr. Leidy's justly and deservedly celebrated SARSAPARILLA BLOOD PILLS, the only pills containing Sarsaparilla in the their composition—the safest and best as well as the most effectual that can be taken.

Old and young, at all times, without regard to weather, may take them without fear of taking cold, and without restraint from occupation or usual course of living. Upwards of 1,000 certificates have been published, various times, of their efficacy. More than 100,000 boxes have been sold in Philadelphia in twelve months. These facts go to prove their value, or so many never would be sold in so short a time, in a place where they are manufactured; this, however, arises in part from the fact that the manufacturer of them (Dr. Leidy) is well known at home as a regular physician and apothecary, knowing the true nature of diseases and of the medicines he recommends, attested by the most celebrated physicians, among whom are Dr. Nathaniel Chapman, Dr. Wm. Gibson, Dr. W. E. Horner, Dr. Samuel Jackson, Dr. Robert Hare, Dr. P. S. Physic, Dr. T. C. James, Dr. W. P. Dewees, Dr. J. Redman Coxe, Rev. W. H. Delaney, Robert Adrian, L.L.D., &c. &c.

Orders for Dr. Leidy's BLOOD PILLS are daily received from the North, South, East, and West, and the most flattering accounts, from every direction, of their unparalleled success. A single box (25 cents) may save as many dollars, if taken in time, instead of the dangerous medicines now forced on the public, and by taking which persons so often find it necessary at last to take Dr. Leidy's Blood Pills, to counteract their injurious consequences.

They are prepared only, and sold Wholesale and Retail, at Dr. Leidy's Health Emporium, No. 191, North Second street, below Vine street, Philadelphia.

(From the Columbian Magazine.)
THE JEWISH RULER.

BY MISS C. LOUISE M. BRAWNER.

There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews—the same that came to Jesus by night.—St. John, c. iii.

Darkness encircled the land called Holy—night, with her train of shadows, mantled mountain, and hill and valley, and deep sea, and placid lake, and gurgling rivulet. There were no stars visible; the sweet sparkling things were hidden behind dense clouds that had been clustering in the heavens since the decline of day, and the fair, pale moon ventured not to glance from beneath her vapory mantle, lest she should behold some devastation on earth, for a rude and terrible storm was portending. All nature appeared conscious of the approaching battle of the elements, and hushed their murmurs. Men, women, and children, birds, beasts, and insects, remained quiet and expectant. Soon the artillery of Heaven disturbed the calm, and flash after flash of lurid flame illumined the vast concave, and revealed the sea beneath—the cities, towns, and villages, the hill sides and pleasant vales of blessed Palestine. Proudest among its proud places stood Jerusalem; her costly palaces, her stately towers, her splendid domes and spires and temples, brightening under each successive gleam shot from the electric heavens. The reverberating thunder and long streams of brilliant lightning were accompanied by thick and fast falling raindrops, as though the ocean above gave vent to its superfluous waves.

In an apartment of a rich and sumptuous dwelling of that eastern clime sat one of its loveliest daughters, now ministering tenderly to a tall and stately man, who tossed on a couch in all the restlessness of a troubled spirit, and anon gazing upon the conflict without. The chamber was supplied with every luxury, and lighted by lamps emitting a sweet and pleasant odor, while upon the forms of its occupants shone jewels of rare beauty and value, and robes from the most famed looms of the age.

The storm continued an hour, and then the dark drapery fell from the blue vault, and the beautiful stars were disclosed to view one by one, like glittering gems, and the moon, gentle and smiling, scattered her rays until the expansive sky was flooded with mellow light, softening and beautifying every object. The breath of countless flowers—such flowers as bloom but in eastern lands—floated up and filled the atmosphere with delicious fragrance, while everything seemed to whisper—

There's light to follow darkness e'er—
There's joy for those who doubt and fear—
There's calm when threatening storms are done—
There's peace for all beneath the sun.

"Look up, my lord, the elements have stayed their contention—look up, I pray, and gladden the heart of thy handmaiden," murmured the lute-like tones of Serah, the wife of Nicodemus. "The gloomy clouds obscure the celestial orbs no longer—all is brightness."

The ruler pressed his hand upon the heart that throbbed wildly beneath his costly robe of purple and fine linen, and, sighing, replied—
"There is no brightness in my soul, Serah; there is naught but darkness and gloom always. In halls of state, in synagogues or temple, at home by thy side, my adored, or abroad, tranquility eludes me, and doubts of a future kingdom, thoughts of another life disturb my bosom."

"Hast thou heard the Nazarene?" questioned his beautiful listener, while to her fair face there sprang an expression of awe and reverence. "Hast thou hearkened to the great teacher whose fame has extended all over our lovely land, the ambassador of God, whose voice has been heard on Olivet's mount, in the garden, by the stream so dear to my heart, and elsewhere?" And there was that in the light of the speaker's beaming countenance that told a Christian woman's undying faith in Him who had gathered around him so many of her fair sisters.

"He is an impostor, Serah; he has deceived thee and others—our Messiah is yet to come," spoke the ruler.

"Dost forget the miracles he has performed?—There was no deception in the awakening of the noble brother of the fair sisters of Bethany from the slumbers of the grave—in the resurrection of the only son of the widow of Nain, and the sweet childish daughter of Jairus, nor in the healing of poor, wasted frames?"

"Ah! Serah, can he heal the mind? Can this boasted one dispel the doubts and fears that have gathered in sad confusion about my aching bosom?" and the ruler hid his noble countenance amid the rich cushions of the sumptuous couch on which he had been seeking repose in vain.

His companion placed her soft hand on his head, and bending down, whispered in his ear. He rose from his pillow and flung his arm round her fair person, drew her to his side, and said—
"Weary of thy presence, my loved one? Weary of aught so good and true? Sooner the golden sun forget his risings and declinings, the moon to gladden the earth with her smile, the stars to sparkle on heaven's robe, the blossoms we love to fling their fragrance on the breeze; sooner all things forget their appointed destinies, than I remember not thy affection, thy truth, thy gentle devotion."

The Jewish wife bent modestly beneath the glance of her lord, cherished next to her God, and murmured—

"Thanks, thanks—and now, hearken to thy servant. Whose power bade the clouds disperse and unmaned the glory of the night-gems, stayed the rain and the swift footed lightning, kept us here unceasing by the fiercely contending elements, reached my heart and thine? Go to the Bethlehemite, and learn what thou wouldst of a future state."

There had long been a shadow on the brow of Nicodemus, a grief in his bosom unrevealed, and this shadow had deepened, this grief grown heavier and darker, until his noble form bent under its influence. Amid the halls of state he remained gloomy and abstracted; and when he sought his rich and gorgeous dwelling, and encountered the soft caresses of his dark-eyed Serah, his troublous dreams increased, his countenance became insupportable, and he longed, in the bitterness of his spirit, to die. Now he trembled beneath the music words that greeted his ear, but he replied—

"Men will scoff at me, Serah—my people will denounce the traitor to the religion of his fathers," and he rose to his feet and paced the apartment impatiently, while his companion poured forth the language of condolence, though her full heart was overflowing with sadness for his anguish. Oh! woman—woman! what is not thine to do and suffer.

"Seek the one I have named, my lord; seek him to-night," she pleaded. "His voice steals on the heart like the melodies of our minstrels, and each tone will bring thee peace."

"Not to-night—oh! not to-night can I seek peace," exclaimed the ruler. "The season of darkness is not a time to unveil the soul."

"There is a flower, my master," meekly answered the Jewess, "that unfolds its petals when all eyes are shrouded save His to whom its fragrance floats up. It pours its incense out in darkness and secrecy. Be like that plant, and bare thy breast to the gaze of heaven."

What cannot the persuasions of the gentle and pure effect?

Nicodemus sought the abode of the Nazarene, and uttering his simple "Rabbi, Rabbi," was admitted to his presence. Fair as a woman's were the broad brow, the delicate cheek and the full lips of that lowly one, while the long flowing curls of radiant hair lent a wondrous beauty to the meek countenance. He spoke, and the ruler hearkened as to a strain of celestial minstrelsy—fear fled away, doubts vanished, and to his heart there stole a thrilling sensation of perfect happiness. He knelt and worshipped in sincerity, and when the first faint streaks of the early dawn became visible, he left the side of his angelic instructor, and sought his proud home, thenceforth to live for that eternal and fadeless clime allotted to those who are borne again.

Jerusalem's pride has been humbled in the dust—centuries have sunk to their graves—nations have risen and fallen, but the power of the teacher still remains; it is glorious—illimitable.

He beholds us, he loves us, he hears us always; In the darkness of midnight—the brightness of day; Though his reign on the rude earth forever is past, From yon heaven arched o'er us his blessings are cast.
